PHYS 4392

More Practice Test 3 problems

1. Find the magnetic field produced by a constant vector potential of magnitude A in the azimuthal direction in cylindrical coordinates.

Hence find the current density that would produce such a vector potential.

Is a multipole expansion useful for this current configuration (briefly explain why or why not)?

[6 points]